

Members of the FCC:

I understand that the National Association of Broadcasters is attempting to limit the broadcasting of local weather and traffic information by XM radio. I can't imagine a good reason for such a limitation, while the availability of these services via XM radio make a lot of sense to me. The presence of XM radio has vastly improved the quality of broadcasts now available via the airwaves, and I believe it is in the public interest to facilitate the development and expansion of such alternatives being available to the public.

Please see to it that the type of self-serving limitations being sought by the NAB are wholly rejected.

Sincerely,

Charles E. Walker
